About Amazon Watch

Protecting the rainforest
Defending Indigenous rights

For 30 years, Amazon Watch has been a leading environmental and human rights organization. We partner with Indigenous peoples to defend their rights, resist the expansion of extractive industries, and amplify their calls for justice. Through our programs, we stand in deep solidarity with frontline communities across the Amazon, advancing their leadership, security, and sovereignty.

Amplify! Our 30th Anniversary Gala

Venue: the striking Beaux-Arts Rotunda Atrium in our hometown of Oakland, CA

Time: 6 – 10 pm

Guests: 300 Indigenous leaders, donors, changemakers, and friends

Experience: A green carpet entrance and step-and-repeat leads into a lively cocktail reception. We'll enjoy a festive, vegetable-forward dinner, inspiring program, and auction, and cap off the night with drinks, sweet treats, and musical guests.

Celebrating 30 years of impact

From stopping 26 oil and gas megaprojects to winning 13 major legal victories, we are excited to showcase our track record.

Recognizing frontline defenders

We'll be joined by Indigenous partners from across the Amazon who are on the front lines of defending their rainforest territories.

Strengthening the path forward

At this critical time for the planet, we hope to inspire guests to invest in our work over the next five years.

The future of the Amazon depends on Indigenous peoples

Research confirms what Amazonian peoples have always known: where Indigenous land rights are secure, forests stand, biodiversity thrives, and our climate is more resilient.

Olivia Bisa Tirko
Chapra Nation, Peru

"The Chapra Nation has been very close to Amazon Watch. They are not just present to support us when we fight extractivism; they stand with us in every challenge we face."

Alessandra Korap Munduruku
Munduruku people, Brazil

"Their way of working respects the time and methods of the movements, their decision-making processes, and the paths chosen by the people themselves."

Diana Chavez
PAKKIRU, Ecuador

"For me, the most beautiful thing has been getting to know the Amazon Watch staff. Their kindness, openness, and the feeling as if we had known each other for a long time."
